Major Highlights from the AY Industry Insights Report - 2025 Publisher Trends, Global Programmatic & Ad Revenue.

1. 2024 Retrospective: Key Trends & Industry Shifts

The digital ad industry saw a major resurgence in 2024, with revenues surpassing pre-pandemic growth. Tech giants like Google, Meta, and Snap reported double-digit increases, fueled by AI and augmented reality.

M&A activity surged 118% YoY, with adtech firms acquiring companies specializing in first-party data, AI, and high-growth channels like CTV and retail media. As third-party cookies phase out and privacy regulations tighten, first-party data is becoming the foundation of advertising strategies.

AI is optimizing bidding, enhancing personalization, and improving ad transparency through blockchain-based reporting. Advertisers are also embracing multi-touch, cross-publisher campaigns to create seamless experiences across CTV, social media, and audio streaming.

2. USA | AY Ad Revenue Index Evolution by Month - AY Total Publishers [2021-2024]

A key moment in the revenue trend happened on November 6, the day after the elections, which had the lowest revenue of the month. Political ad spending dropped almost instantly. But the market bounced back quickly, with revenue nearly returning to normal the next day as holiday spending

Overall, the second half of 2024 performed much better than the last three years. The first half, however, was more mixed, with some publishers making less money than in previous years. This shows that most of the year's growth came from political ad budgets and Q4's usual seasonal boost.

3. AY Europe AdRevenue Index Evolution [Quarter/Year]

According to our data, the European programmatic ad market followed a different pattern than the US in 2024.

Unlike the US, Europe's programmatic ad market saw weaker-than-expected revenue in Q3 and Q4, despite early-year growth. A key factor? Identity (ID) solutions.

While adoption surged in the US, especially direct Hashed Email (HEM) approaches, these advanced solutions remain largely unavailable or underutilized in Europe. Without access to high-performing ID tech, European publishers faced greater revenue challenges.

4. SSPs Trends: Explore the Top-Performing SSPs!

In 2024, the SSP landscape trends shifted a bit, with major changes occurring between the Global Tier 1 and Global Tier 2 players.

In the Global Tier 1 analysis of SSPs performance in Q4 2024, interestingly, new players emerged and saw significant growth, especially in the share of revenue despite a lesser market presence.

When analyzing the performance of Tier 2 SSPs in Q4 2024, the landscape looks quite different from Tier 1. Instead of being dominated by major SSPs, a significant share of revenue comes from reselling SSPs.

We bring the Top 5 SSPs by win rate and by comparing their performance in winning auctions and revenue share in a chart that illustrates Prebid demand amongst AY's partners.

6. Traffic Shaping for Revenue Growth with Nils Lind, Chris Kane, and Rob Beeler.

The gap between publisher supply and demand-side platforms (DSPs) continues to widen, creating inefficiencies that directly impact publishers' revenue. These issues are reshaping the interaction between publishers, supply-side platforms (SSPs), and Demand-side Platforms (DSPs), leading to the under-monetization of a significant portion of inventory and pushing certain demand segments to the limit.

To tackle the huge challenges and opportunities for digital publishers, SSPs, and DSPs, we gathered top three industry experts; Chris Kane, Founder/CEO at Jounce Media, Nils Lind, Founder/CEO at Assertive Yield, and Rob Beeler, Founder/CEO at Beeler.tech, in this 4-episode series where they explore exclusive insights.

in inventory dynamics within the same country, depending on the presence or absence of political spend.

These variations had a major impact on how publishers experienced market shifts. Additionally, the spending patterns between the US and Europe changed significantly, with political spend playing a major role in these differences.

However, a deeper analysis of the data reveals that political spend was not the sole driver of performance growth. Identity enrichment also played a crucial role, with bridging providers gaining popularity and new solutions emerging to address the identity gap.

As Assertive Yield continues to lead the charge in innovating with optimization solutions, we remain committed to empowering publishers and industry professionals with the tools and insights needed to thrive in the ever-changing advertising industry.
